 Claims 1-10 and 17-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lamkin (US Patent Application No. 20060159109). Application/Control Number: 10/771,805 Page 3

Art Unit: 2161

Regarding Claims 1.10.17.18, and 24-28, Lamkin discloses a method of tracking and synchronizing content across a plurality of client devices and a Server ("managing content that detects there is a change to content on a local network, determines whether the change is additional content on a first client device, determines whether the additional content can be identified, determines whether there is a predictive distribution scheme when the additional content is identified, distributes the additional content over the local network according the predictive distribution scheme when a predictive distribution scheme applies to the additional content, determines whether a new predictive distribution scheme can be defined when a predictive distribution scheme does not apply to the additional content, and saves the new predictive distribution scheme when a new predictive scheme can be defined" (see [0005])..."detect new content on a first client device of a network; identify the new content; determine whether related content has been received on the network; determining a usage of the related content relative to being added to the network; and schedule a distribution of the new content over the network based on the determined usage of the related content" (see [0006])..."the process detects that new content is available over the network. This determination can be based on polling of devices on the network or receiving a notification from a client device that the client device includes new content. In many implementations of the network 120, one or more client devices are capable of notifying the server 122 of additional content, and other devices have to be polled by the server. A log file, the CDS, or other tracking can be utilized by the server to determine which devices are to be polled and when to poll devices. This tracking can be altered over time based on additions to the system, expected changes to client devices, history of detecting additional content at a client device and other such criteria" (see [0072])... "Some embodiments further manage content by providing content synchronization over the network 121 and/or remote network 140. Synchronizing content can provide a consistent view of content over the network when multiple copies of content exist over the network. The synchronization can update content when one copy of content is updated or altered. Similarly, synchronization can delete, add, move or alter content based on changes of status of content on one or more devices of the network" (see [0132]). COMDrising:

receiving new content within a request from a user ([0069], lines 8-11, Lamkin); reviewing specific content within said new content in response to the request and comparing with duplicate or related content which is available across any of the multiple devices ([0073] and [0104], Lamkin)¹; performing the request and creating a new content record corresponding to said new content ([0118-0119], Lamkin); automatically completing said new content record based on information contained in the specific content as well as information about the presence of duplicate or related content which is available across the multiple devices ([0140], Lamkin); and updating the records of duplicate or related content with information about the specific content associated with said new content record to synchronize all the content records ([0132], Lamkin).

Regarding Claim 2, Lamkin discloses a method further comprising: receiving a copy, delete, or print request from a user corresponding to said specific content wherein duplicates of said specific content, or related to said specific content, are retained across multiple devices configured for communicating with one another over a network ([0092], lines 1-6, Lamkin);

Art Unit: 2161

reviewing a record associated with the specific content in response to the request and analyzing the associated record to determine what duplicate or related content is available across the multiple devices ([0118] and [0139], Lamkin):

transmitting a confirmation for the request in response to detecting the presence of any duplicate or related content ([0123], lines 12-19, [0133], [0139], Lamkin); and performing the request in response to receiving the request and instructions from the user in responding to said confirmation ([0123], lines 12-19, [0133], lines 37-39, [0139], Lamkin).

Regarding Claims 3,4, and 20, Lamkin discloses a method further comprising:

receiving a copy, delete, or print request from a user corresponding to said specific content wherein duplicates of said specific content, or related to said specific content, are retained across multiple devices configured for communicating with one another over a network ([0092], lines 1-6, Lamkin);

determining utilization of any duplicate or related content based on a preestablished preference and the type of request which was received ([0157] and [0320], Lamkin).

Regarding Claims 5 and 19, the Lamkin discloses the method wherein said specific content includes one from the group of content items consisting of a photograph, music, a document, and a video ([0047], lines 3-6, Lamkin).

Regarding Claims 6 and 23, Lamkin discloses the method wherein each content record includes a field related content (f0091], Lamkin).

Regarding Claims 7 and 21, Lamkin discloses the method further comprising storing the preference in a storage device ([0049], Lamkin).

Regarding Claims 8 and 22, Lamkin discloses the method further comprising storing the record in a storage device ([0052], Lamkin).

Regarding Claim 9, Lamkin discloses the method wherein the confirmation asks the user for authorization for executing the request ([0123], Lamkin).
